Cor Unum & Bryan van Schooten – Roofscape

Roofscape

Inspired by architectural structures

Hilly - reflects variations in steepness, ruggedness, and form

Spout - refers to a long and narrow air channel

Erer - soft curves meet solid lines

These vases reflect the raw beauty of concrete structures that stand firm in a world full of architecture. With sharp lines and angular shapes, they reference brutalist buildings that dominate urban landscapes. At the same time, they exude a subtle elegance, inspired by the flowing lines of roofscape stretching across the city.

Cor Unum

Cor Unum is a production house where high-quality ceramics are crafted on behalf of designers and the business world, where young people learn craft techniques, and where innovative designs are encouraged. Cor Unum seeks collaboration with others by creatively reaching out to designers for new products and by establishing a smooth organization where volunteers, professionals, people with employment challenges, students, and designers are molded into a professional collective that secures the ceramic craft for the future.

Cor Unum is recognizable by the logo with the tree of life. The people within the company share a common ideal: everyone deserves a place, everyone has a talent, and everyone can contribute to making the world a more beautiful place.

Bryan van Schooten

In 2016, Bryan van Schooten (1992) first came into contact with ceramics. In his studio in Tilburg, "Atelier Bryan van Schooten," he is currently focused primarily on creating both functional and non-functional ceramic objects. Among other things, he has made stoneware stools and, in collaboration with Glazed Graffiti, designed a new version of the MF DOOM mask.

Bryan draws inspiration from his surroundings, from ceramists of the 1960s, and from architecture. His mission is to take ceramics to another level. In addition to hand-throwing, he also specializes in plaster modeling (creating models and molds).

Bryan also works as a plaster modeler at the Cor Unum – Ceramics & Art foundation in 's-Hertogenbosch, where his love for ceramics began years ago.
